

ORGANIZING QUANTITATIVE & QUALITATIVE DATA

The screenshot shows a web browser window displaying a blog post. The browser's address bar shows the URL: <http://aea365.org/blog/dreolin-fleischer-on-organizing-quantitative-and-qualitative-data/>. The page title is "Dreolin Fleischer on Organizing Quantitative and Qualitative Data · AEA365".

The main header of the page reads "AEA365 | A Tip-a-Day by and for Evaluators". Below the header is a navigation menu with links for "Home", "About", "Contribution Guidelines", and "Archive".

The article is dated "Feb/10 21" and is titled "Dreolin Fleischer on Organizing Quantitative and Qualitative Data". It has "4 Comments" and was "Posted by John LaVelle in Uncategorized".

The article text begins with: "Hi, my name is Dreolin Fleischer. I am a doctoral student at Claremont Graduate University. I would like to share resources, at different price points, I have used to capture and organize qualitative and quantitative telephone interview data."

The next paragraph states: "One resource I have used in the past is Microsoft Office Access. You can create a form in Access that mirrors the interview protocol you are using. You control where each field on each form is located and you can create multiple tabs for different interview questions. As you conduct the interview you enter the interviewee's responses directly into the field associated with the question you posed. Cost: $$"

On the right side of the page, there is a "Take Action" section with the following links: "Go to AEA Home", "Subscribe to AEA365 via Email", "Subscribe to AEA365 via RSS", "Subscribe to Comments via Email", and "Subscribe to Comments via RSS". Below this is a "Search" section with a search input field and a "Go" button.

For further information:

<http://aea365.org/blog/dreolin-fleischer-on-organizing-quantitative-and-qualitative-data/>